Code of Ethics

Every Applicant must sign the Code of Ethics. Failure to abide by these rules may result in expulsion from the Society.

The Sacramento Archeological Society, Inc. is dedicated to the greater understanding of archaeology, to the protection and preservation of the Sacramento region and the world's archaeological resources, and to the encouragement of archaeological research and publication.

Consistent with these principles, the Sacramento Archeological Society Inc. and its members shall adhere to the following, which constitutes a Code of Ethics:

1. Seek to ensure that the study of archaeological sites is conducted according to professional standards and the results be made public;
2. Refuse to participate in the trade of undocumented antiquities;
3. Inform appropriate authorities and public agencies of ways to preserve fragile and irreplaceable heritage resources.

I (we) agree to abide by the above Code of Ethics
